

Last weekend, I had a frightening and humiliating experience in Sai Kung. Let me tell you about it. I'll start from the beginning.

We went to Sai Kung by school bus, it was a fabulous bus trip, actually, and we all clapped and cheered when we got off and saw the scenery. The water was crystalline and the sun was smiling at us. We walked for a while by the seashore and came across a funny looking old man. He was twitching his nose when he saw us and said "Look! What are you doing here? Haven't you heard of the three eyed monster? It has sharp fangs and comes out from nowhere!" We laughed and thought him as a maniac. We took no notice and kept on walking until us girls all got drowsy and tired, and we were sweating all over - so we sat down and had a drink of water it was time for lunch anyway, so we and Joe had lunch while I looked at the seashore and Ricky and played badminton delightfully.

Suddenly, I heard a ^{disturbing} creepy sound going wheesh! Wheesh! I nearly fell over and my legs felt like jelly. I tried to warn them but they were too noisy. All of a sudden, a whispering was heard, then out of nowhere a green scaly three eyed monster came out from the water! The things I should man said were true. The monster first had a go at the boys and the boys screamed and so did I. We ran as fast as our legs could carry us. The girls saw the monster and yelled helpfully and they ran behind a huge rock with us. The monster went out of the reservoir and tried to catch us. It was fast but it could run as fast as lightning. Its body went wobble - wobble, wobble - wobble, it was hilarious!

* They the boys had a great idea, they got buckets of water and poured it all over the monster. The monster was not defeated and it ran to catch us. I had an idea, if it ~~hates~~ ^{is} afraid of water, it will be afraid of fire. I crept towards the brickwork pit, it still had fire. The monster saw me and followed me. I ran to the fire and he jumped on the fire and was burnt to death! Yeh! My idea worked, monsters are so stupid so they just followed me. My friend said thank you to me and said that I was courageous and brave. Oh! how happy I was!
