Dear Chris,

Hello! I have not written letters to you for a long time. This time, I want to tell you something I always see in the MTR. I have to go back to school by MTR so I often see these problems.

One morning, I saw an old man in the MTR. Everyone pretended that he was invisible. No one ever came out to give up their seats. Last week, the same thing happened. A disabled person kept standing while other people kept doing their own activities. This week, a pregnant woman couldn't sit down, either.

Did you know why no one gave up their seats? I thought this was because everyone only thought about themselves. They didn't think that the old man, the disabled person and the pregnant woman would be unable to stand so long. People just knew that everyone was as comfortable as themselves.

I felt very mad. I didn't know why they didn't give up their seats. If I had a seat, I would give it up immediately. I also felt very sorry for the old man, the disabled person and the pregnant woman.

They would feel very helpless!

I hope the MTR can do something to stop these situations. The MTR can add extra seats for people in need. Maybe it can be a whole cabinet of 'people in need seats'! I think the MTR can also encourage people to give up their seats, too.

In order to encourage people, we should let them know how helpless the people in need felt. We can hold activities such as communicating with old people, disabled person and pregnant women. We can teach more about giving up seats in school. These will be great help to stop the situations.

Do you think I'm right? People should not only think about themselves, they should think about others too. Have anything like this happen in your neighborhood? Do you have any good plans to solve these problems? Please write back soon.

Yours. Truly,
Sammy Lee
