Dear Chris,

How are you? Do you enjoy your life in London?

I want to tell you about what I saw on the MTR.

I travel to school and back by MTR everyday.

I always have to stand but it doesn't matter because

I am young and strong. But one morning, I saw a an elderly person standing on the MTR. First, I thought somebody would give the seat to the elderly person. A moment later, I saw the person was still standing and no one give up their seat. I felt very surprised! I think we should give up our seats to the elderly people because they are old and weak, they need our help very much.

Last week I also saw the same thing happened to a disabled person. Although there were young people and students on the MTR, they just pretended they couldn't see the disabled person. The disabled really need our seats because some of them can't walk very well and they will feel painful when they stand. We should give up our seats to them.

Then one day this week I also saw the same happened! A pregnant woman was on the MTR but nobody would give up a seat to her. It will be so dangerous if she stand for a long time. The pregnant women will also be so tired if they stand. A seat is always very important for them.

I think the MTR can make some posters to tell people to give up their seats to the people in need. The MTR can also make more seats and these seats can be different colour so people can organize these seats are for the elderly, disabled, pregnant women or people who in need.

Maybe the MTR can also hold some slogan competitions to remind the kids and students they should give up seats on the MTR.

I think people should be more helpful. If we see the people in need, we should always give up our seats to them. We can be delighted if we help people.

How do you feel about this happened? Do you have any ideas? Please write soon.

Yours,

Sammy
