Dear Editor,

Civic Education

As you know, Hong Kong is a well-known city all over the world. However, sometimes the <sup>citizens</sup> set bad examples, and it may affect the name of Hong Kong too!

For example, it is typical of us Hong Kong people to spit on streets and parks. It will make others feel disgusted, and spitting is certainly very unhygienic.

Also, in buses or trains, I have seen for many times that young, healthy teenagers know that there are elderly <sup>standing</sup> on the transports. Instead of letting the elderly to sit, they actually pretended that they didn't see anything and focused back on playing with their phones! I don't think it is a action to be pleased with, editor.

~~However~~, That's not all. Let me tell you one more example.

In shopping malls, or plazas, or even cinemas, sometimes they will give out some thing for free ~~or~~ or on sale. We have another costum from other countrys, though. Other countries or cities line up properly and wait patiently. Hong kong people push and step on each other's foot, and I take that kind of behaviour unbearable.

Editor, after seeing the above cases, do you think this is the <sup>kind of</sup> Hong Kong people <sup>and travellers</sup> are expecting? Actually, I'm not sure if I want to live here myself anymore if this gets worse.

So, I am going to organize a Civic Education Week. I am sure that you don't want our school mates to be un-civic too, right?

I hope that in this activity, the students will learn that it is not alright to do these actions, and if we do it, then we have no consideration for others too. I also plan that after this activity, the students will also encourage others to have better behaviours in the society. The aims of the civic education week is very simple, yet very meaningful.

If everyone can be civic and ~~be~~ have a good behaviour, then Hong Kong would be an even better place! And if Hong Kong is neat and tidy, I am sure tourists and the people living in Hong Kong would be much better too!

Last but not least, me, as the chairman of the school's civic education club, hopes all the students have a happy time in the coming Civic Education Week!

Yours faithfully,

Sammy Lee
